Ann Barnes

Executive VP, Global Product Development

In September 2019, Ann Barnes joined Instadose Pharma as Executive Vice President, Global Product Development in anticipation of the worldwide expansion of cannabis and hemp derived retail products.

Ms. Barnes began her legal career acting as In-house and General Counsel for numerous public and privately held companies including Manulife Financial; Cott Corporation; Alliance Atlantis and Insight Sports.

In addition to her corporate legal background, Ms. Barnes has extensive hemp and cannabis experience. As an active entrepreneur, in 2013, Ms. Barnes founded and operated the world's first privately held medically licensed cannabis facility: the Peace Naturals Project Inc., which has been subsequently bought by Cronos and the Altria Group. Prior to the Canadian legalization of cannabis, Ms. Barnes also owned and operated one of North America's first hemp-based superfood companies. Her passion for plants is most recently reflected in her launch of a natural plant-based supplement company, Edica Naturals, which includes a CBD line.

Ms. Barnes is a well-respected plant-based personality, hemp and cannabis activist and public speaker. She has written extensively for various health and wellness publications, has appeared on numerous radio and television shows and has published two best-selling health and wellness books. Most recently, Ms. Barnes's TED Talk video received over 500K views and has been transcribed and translated into Arabic.

In 2018, Ms. Barnes became an independent member of the Board of Directors of Earth Alive Clean Technologies Inc. (a soil regeneration-based company) and is Chair of the Human Resource Committee. From 2013-2017, Ms. Barnes acted as the Chair and Director of Peace Naturals Project Inc.

Ms. Barnes holds a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and Economics from York University (Hons. BA), and a Bachelor of Law from the University of Windsor (LLB).
